E. J. MORGAN AND MISS BERTRAM WED

Rialto Much Interested in the Announced Union of the Matinee Idol and the Comio Opera Singer.

BOTH IN DIVORCE COURTS.

Morgan's Domestic Career Stormy and His Latest Bride is Not Wholly Unfamiliar with Referee's Decisions and Decrees.

From Chicago comes the news that Edward J. MoMrMgan and Miss Helen Bertram have been married, and no alliance, matrimonial or otherwise, in theatrical world, has so stirred the interest of the Rialto in its own affairs. Morgan, as the matinee idol, who has a domestic career as stormy as the tempest tossed seas, and Helen Bertram, who has figured in two divorces and three marriages, received more than a passing interest from fellow actors and actresses as well as the public at large.

Morgan has always been one of those tense young men who talk between their teeth and look &so earnest that the hearts of& the matinee girls go right out to them. Helen Bertram is one of those young women whom men used to see from the first rows of the orchestra and go &away with admiration warming their hearts. Tomasi Her First Husband.

Helen Bertram first manied Achille Tomasi the musical director. Then she met Edward J. Henley and Tomasi named him in a suit for divorce, which was granted. Afterward Miss Bertram's name was mentioned by Mary Hampton, then the wife of Mr. Henley. E. Henley later became the husband of Miss Bertram. When that actor died the wife had his body incinerated and his ashes, carried around with her durhis ashes carried around with her during her travels, gave many a press agent an excuse for a visit to the country newspaper offices.

When the name of Helen Bertram began to be separated from marriages and divorces in the papers and got itself fastened to the new singing soles which she undertook a young man logined up on the horizon, and once again the actress became the subject of gossip. S. George d'Essauer, of French noble birth, became entranced and followed her from one city to another. He had rolls of freen money that were too heavy to pack around by an ordinary mortal and the way in which he echanged them was even startling to the big cities in which the actress sang and sometimes danced. Then D'Essauer got mixed up in a scandal in which some forged notes were concerned. Miss Bertram was mightily shocked, and for a time was prostrated over the disclosures. D'Essauer was indicted, fled to Europe, and was arrested in London, where he posed as a French nobleman.

Morgan Lately Divorced.

Morgan Lately Divorced. Edward J. Morgan, widely known as the John Storm in "The Christian," also knows what the atmosphere of the disporce court is. Quite recently he was informed that his wife, Adelaide Cushman, had been successful in obtaining a divorce from him on the grounds of crustity. Mr. Morgan said at the time that his feelings were relieved by the action of the court, but when he found that he had to pay almony he was anything but easy of mind.

Ledsam begged that the arrest be kept from his wife. "It will kill her if she hears of it," he said.

The man could get no baff and to-day he made a rope of his suspenders and tying one end to the bars in his cell and the other around his neck he tried to hang himself. When found he was unconscious.

Herbert Thompson, Alleged to Have Been a Go-Between for "Monk" Eastman and the Broker, Taken Into Custody.

Herbert Thompson, said to be the missing link in the case of Broker David Lamar and the "Monk" Eastman gang, whom he is charged with employing to assault his coachman. James McMahon, is under arrest in Catskill, N. Y., and will be brought to this city for identification.

and there met Heroert Thompson. The indictments charge that Lamar endeavored to employ Thompson to administer the thrashing to McMahon, that Thompson refused to commit the assault himself, but obtained for him the services of "Mork" Eastman and his notorious east side gang.

According to these indictments Thompson and Lamar drove in a cab to Eastman's headquarters on the east side and there held a conference with the thug. The result of this conference, so the papers charge, was that Eastman. Joe Brown and two others of his clan went to Freehold, the county seat of Monmouth County. N. J., and there brutally assaulted McMahon.

Sheriff Strong, of Monmouth County, said to-day he had been aware of Thompson's connection with the crime, but had been unable to find him until yesterday, when, through a letter, he traced him to Catskill. As soon as the startling revelations alleging the connection of the rich broker in the conspiracy with the liberal use of money to hire professional thugs became public Thompson is said to have skipped out.

Sheriff Strong said that if Thompson declined to appear as a witness against Lamar and the Eastman gang he would be indicted and tried as a party to the Henry Courtenay, After Drifting About Looking for a Job and Finally Locating in Paterson Restaurant, Gets Good News.

PATERSON, N. J., Oct. 6 .- Henry Courtenay, who was employed as waiter in a local restaurant here, has been notified through lawyers in London that he had fallen heir to an estate valued at $250,000 by the death of his uncle, Joseph Courtenay. He has answered requesting funds to enable him to make the journey to the other side to claim his property.

Courtenay, who is about twenty-three years old, came here about two weeks ago from New York, where he had tried unsuccessfully to secure employment His home is in Massachusetts, but he left there some time ago, shortly after the death of his mother. He drifted here and obtained a place n Carlson's restaurant on Market street. He often spoke of wealthy relatives in England, and when the good news of his fortune reached him he re ceived congratulations in a matter-of-
